PREFACE

Vedic Civilization or Aryan civilization or Hinduism are one and the same and refer to a civilization based on सनातन धर्म (Sanaatan' Dharm' as defined later in this book). To fully understand this book it is necessary to know the difference between Dharma and Religion. In Hinduism, Dharma means duty which is of paramount importance whereas religion comes under "Sampradaay" (sect) or different ways of worship of God. Christianity and Islam are such sects.

This civilization is now under seize being attacked by western civilizations based on Christianity and Islam on the one hand and communism on the other.

Most of Dharmaachaaryas and general Hindus are unaware of the teaching of Christianity, Islam, etc. and believe that these religions are also as humane and broad looking as Hinduism. To enable them to understand these religions an analysis of their teaching is provided. A proper study will prove how tribal these Western Civilizations are.

Critical comments about other religions are not to denigrate these religions (as they do about Hinduism even by wrong interpretation and falsehood) but only so that they can improve matters as were done by Vedic and other Hindu religions earlier. According to Dr. David Frawley, Hindus would be justified to present their own critique of other religions when they are facing deliberately distorted version of their own religion. They should not sit quietly without response otherwise it is cowardice not tolerance.

Many amongst Hindus also shall find it difficult to believe in some of criticism against Islam and Christianity as essentially they are fed by Macaulay's education to believe that these religions are also equally noble. But well researched matter is only quoted and for more details they are advised to read the books quoted themselves. Hinduism has also been criticized for its shortcomings, which affects the life in this country. The criticism is also not against Hindu religious leaders but for improvement and progress in the religion itself and to strive to take this ancient civilization one step upwards.

I have also elaborated on what is to be done to improve matters under the belief that it is not good merely to criticize but also to offer solution. Others may have different ideas. This should at least start the debate.

Though there is now lot of literature discussing the partiality in India favouring other religions against Hinduism but there are no basic suggestions about how to meet the challenge. Most of present suggestion is that Hindus should unite and vote together. However this is against the principle of Hinduism which allows complete freedom and independence to all to think and act independently. This book than suggests alternatives which are dependent on the action to be taken by Hindu politicians and Dharmaachaaryas. The politicians have to ensure to change the present defective electoral system and incorporate Sanaatan' Dharm' principles in Constitutions and the Dharmaachaaryas have to propagate principles of Sanaatan' Dharm' and meet the propaganda by other religionists by presenting facts and counter propaganda. Though the path would be difficult and long one but not impossible. If Jinnah could achieve an almost impossible demand of partition, the legitimate demand of Hindus can definitely be met, provided there is sincere effort and continuous effort by people who are confident and have faith in themselves and God.

It has not been possible to acknowledge each quotation separately by book or author due to concise nature of this book-let and for seamless flow of ideas. This book is not meant to be a study book for scholars but for masses. Most of its data is from Western books. For reference please see the references quoted.

Essentially this book is a continuation of the earlier book by the author "Indian Economics & Social Traditions".

Chapter 1

INTRODUCTION

This booklet is a small history of the evolution and rise of Vedic Civilization in ancient past and subsequent fall. Swami Vivekananda says "It is out of past that future has to be moulded as it is past which becomes future. Hence, more the Indians study their past, the more glorious will be their future". But this is only possible if history is presented truthfully. Unfortunately, this is not so in most of the countries of the World. The Semitic religions of the World (Judaism, Christianity and Islam) as well as communism of Marx teach that anything that existed before advent of these pertained to dark ages and ignorance. Hence, they try to belittle all earlier achievements and even destroy it.

Study of past mistakes can guide us about pitfalls to be avoided as also the achievements can guide us to brighter future. As they say "History repeats itself". After all in spite of all the technical advancement in physical sciences, the human weaknesses like desires, anger, jealousy, avariciousness, pride and prejudice etc., all remain same and hence just as a machine needs repetitive maintenance of same parts, similarly same type of situations repeat themselves in human life. Hence we need correct information.

Just as we learn from past mistakes we can also find solutions of today's problem from past as all problems repeat. Since ours is the oldest and most successful civilization of the world, it is only its history, that can guide us.

Unfortunately, Communist and Islamic historians have taken control of institutions like JNU (Jawaharlal Nehru University) and AMU (Aligarh Muslim University) as also other central institutions like ICHR (Indian Council of Historical Research) and NCERT (National Council of Education Research and Training). They have suppressed all information about the great heights which Vedic civilization had attained as also extreme and barbarous attacks by Muslims on ancient temples, libraries, universities and forceful conversions. Also in Pakistan and other Muslim countries Hindus are presented in extremely poor light and wrong depiction of being intolerant etc. Their history hides our glorious past and universal influence in past. Bereft of any self respect, our children blindly copy west. Compared to this no attempt is made in western countries to hide inconvenient facts. Thus the American war of Independence against Britain is not hidden or washed away in the name of good relations with Britain being affected. Nor in Germany is the holocaust against Jews by Nazis under Hitler washed away. The Jews insist that world must never forget what happened to them.

Thus on the one hand achievements of Vedic civilization is hidden from Indian text books; on the other hand Western text books provide false knowledge about discoveries by Westerners that were plagiarized or stolen from over 1000 years earlier Indian discoveries like Newton's Law of Gravity, Jenner's inoculation, Pythagoras's theorem of Geometry or other theories of atomic structure of the world (Kanad), Earth's rotation around Sun etc. The progress achieved by Indians is hidden from them so that others can claim its authorship. Even history books were changed to suit Western imperialism. Hinduism was prevalent throughout the world at that time including Arabia, Europe, and North & South Americas more than three thousand years ago and remained until Christian era. All this history records were destroyed and changed.

Christianity which had origin in Hinduism and Buddhism was rid of all such appearance and practices as explained later. All temples in Europe were destroyed and Hindus forcibly converted to Christianity. The library of Alexandria containing all ancient records was completely burned. Later on the same was done to Taxila University in North West India. This was followed by Muslim invaders who burnt all Eastern Universities and Libraries like Naalanda in Bengal/ Bihar region. The Aryan history was twisted to have migrated from Europe to India and the ancient Indian (Aryan) civilization was camouflaged by the name "Sumeru Civilization" which existed somewhere in Middle East (Mesopotamia) and vanished. The Raamaayan' episode and its history have been shifted eastwards. Though Raamaayan' episodes are also present in Thailand, Indonesia, etc. Even now all efforts to get to truth are resisted vehemently by western scholars. In their haughtiness, white Christians have made a separate 'Europe' out of Asian continent simply because of Ural Mountains dividing Russia. Nowhere else is such partition shown.

Evil has to be exposed and removed from minds of students; otherwise evil will over-power the good and forge ahead against tolerant non-violence of good. Similarly the past achievements must be highlighted so that inspiration can be taken to forge further ahead. Essentially this book is a continuation of the earlier book by the author "Indian Economics & Social Traditions".

Belgian writer Koenraad Elst notes, "The most important opponents of Hindu Society today are not Islamic communal writers, but the interiorized colonial rulers of India, the ^{Kalidasa} alienated English educated and mostly 'left-leaning' elite that advertises its secularism. It is these people who keep Hinduism down and prevent it from raising its head after a thousand years of oppression".

Dr. David Frawley points out that Hindus do not believe in only one God or one son of God or only one prophet or only one true scripture and salvation only through this single God. There are no common set of beliefs and even non-belief in God is accepted (Saankhya etc). Then what is fundamentalism in Hindus?

Religious teachings in universities are given a respectful place in American secular society. Yet the colonial prejudice about "secularity" forbids such education in Indian universities. For this Indian scholars have to go to American, British or other universities, which have all the prejudices of western society.

It will thus be seen that it is not Hindus alone who are affected by suppression of this most successful civilization of the world but those who have open mind and want the world and entire humanity to prosper. All look towards India to lead the world to security from the barbarous conduct of other religions which have their minds and eyes closed due to most primitive beliefs that nothing can be changed from their religions texts written about 2000 years earlier and that a single person received guidance of God for the final and last time. They don't accept that God himself has given eyes, mind and intelligence to all human being and these faculties need to be fully developed and used for benefit of entire society and world. Also the basic purpose of religion is to improve life and society in this world and not to enjoy another life after death in so called heaven when there is so no such human body elsewhere in the universe, or at least nothing like heaven and hell described in the religious texts of yore.

Even a British like Malcolm Muggeridge who was a teacher in India for a long time before independence says, "I dimly realized that a people can be laid waste culturally as well as physically but also in their inner life. This is what happened in India when we imposed on them an alien culture, which itself was hollow and trivial. We drained the Country of its life and creativity making it a place of mimicry and echoes" (from Maanoj Rakhit's book Seed 3).

VEDIC CIVILIZATION- ITS LOCATION, RISE AND ACHIEVEMENTS

Excerpts from book "The Rigveda—A Historical Analysis" by Shrikant Talageri

Government of India under the influence of leftists and "Secularists" accepts the Aryan invasion theory, which says Aryans came from Europe and invaded India in early second millennium BC. This theory has been put up to satisfy European ego, which does not accept anything superior to their own culture having been developed by an Asian Country (India). Even UNESCO Publication characterizes Rig'Ved' as "epic of destruction of ancient civilization of the world" But in comparison both Bible and Koran are more destructive which asks its followers to destroy anything contrary or not believing in these texts.

Mr. Talageri proves emphatically from Rig'Ved' itself that original Aryas were from area to east of Punjab that is between Uttar Pradesh in east and Afghanistan in West. Also total period of composition of Rig'Ved' was about 2000 years.

There are scholars like Victor Mair who regard anybody disagreeing with him as "chauvinist, extremist etc". This is gladly reported by other Western Scholars and this shows hollowness of their independence of thinking and scholarship. His theories have mistakes (e.g. Indo-Iranians in 1500 BC are shown located in north and west of Caspian Sea). All archaeological, linguistics and other details are misinterpreted. Instead of Aryan Europeans coming to India, the texts show remarkable emigration from India to North Afghanistan during early period of Rig'Ved'.

Mr. Talgeri's reports to establish truth survived various attempts by US scholars to tempt him (like others) by large scholarship, donation and job offers in U.S. Universities etc., provided he gave up his theory as above.

Mr. Talgeri's research is based on Rig'Ved' itself and not on any extraneous sources. It is based on words, phrases, myths, legends, rituals and sacrificial sessions etc from Rig'Ved' itself. For details please refer to his book.

Hindu Travels and Settlements—

Excerpts from

Hindu Superiority by late Har-Bilas Sarda

Hindu History of Muslim Middle East by Sudhakar Raje.

Rather than the contrived theory of Aryans coming from Central Asia to India, It is the other way round. Unprejudiced historians accept the fact it is the migration of Indians, which colonized and spread its civilization all around.

Court Bjornsterna says "In AaryaVart' we must find the cradle of civilization which spread in West to Ethiopia and Egypt, in east to China and Japan, in South to Lanka, Java, Sumatra and in north to Persia, Greece and Rome". Col. Olcott traces Aryan civilization from India Westwards to Europe by studies of languages.

In pre-Christian era, Hindus settled in various parts of the world comprising Afghanistan, Persia, Iraq, Syria, Turkey, Arabia, Egypt, Greece, Italy, Siberia, Scandinavia, Britain, North and South America and established temples as well as spread worship of various deities like Shiva, Ram, and Ganesh etc.

They also found out the Earth's 7 Islands which existed thousands of years ago. However, many of the ancient Islands and continents have altered completely after the Deluge.

Antiquity and History

Monsieur Debois says "The influence of India from the banks of Ganges pervades every corner of world." Count Bjornstjerna says "No nation on earth can vie with Hindus in respect of antiquity of civilization and religion". He further states, If it is true that as per Bally's calculation, Hindus had 3000 years before Christ attained such high degree of knowledge about astronomy and geometry, how many centuries earlier their civilization must have commenced, since human mind advances only step by step in science. Pliny states that from date of Bacchus to Alexander, 154 Kings ruled over India. This period extended for 6451 years and how many before that, history is silent. Abul Fazl in translation of 'Raj Tarangini' quotes names of kings whose successive regimes covered 4109 years from Dionysius (an Indian King) to Chandragupta.

They also developed the civilization based on various arts and sciences and formed regulations of government and society. Hindus were declared by Greeks to be the bravest nation in world. Position of women in Hindu society has been very high from the beginning. In philosophy the great German philosopher Schopenhauer says "In the whole world there is no study so beneficial and elevating as that of Upanishads". Mathematics originated from Veda's SulabhSootr' and Pythagoras came to India to learn mathematics. The numerals and decimal system are all Hindu inventions. In medicine the AayurVed system is as ancient as Vedas and even surgery was practiced by Sushrut in 400 B.C. There is also a Vriksh' AayurVed' pertaining to diseases of plants. In Astronomy Hindus had advanced even at the beginning of KaliYug' that is 5000 years ago. They accurately determined the period of tropical year, the obliquity of earth towards sun and the also calculated the motion of stars, divided the year in 12 months and 7 days in a week. In 12th century BhaaskarAcharya explained the law of gravity and earth's roundness was already established in Aitariya Brahman and also that the earth rotates around sun. Similar advancement where achieved in military science, music and development of commerce.

Religion and Various Gods

Religion and science went hand in hand and never in opposition. They also gave extreme prominence to Sanaatan' Dharm' or universal permanent principles which remained true for all people at all times and places.

The mythologies of Greeks, Egyptians and Assyrians are wholly founded in Hindu mythology. Idols of Ganesh, Shiva and Vishnu have been found throughout the world and so also of Krishna, Garud and Buddha.

Sanskrit language was taken by immigrants from India and Will Durant says that Sanskrit is the mother of all Indo-European languages. The epics of MahaaBhaarat' and Raamaayan' spread throughout the world and ManuSmriti and law of Manu helped many countries in their law books.

Early recorded history of this civilization

Various Europeans, Chinese and others who visited India from 5th century B.C. onwards have recorded the achievements of this civilization. They speak of people being justice minded. There are no slaves and they do not lie. People are straight forward and honest and they love wisdom, fairness and moderation. They also speak of good agricultural practices, unrivalled manufacturing skills, hospitality, charity and respectful treatment of women.

THE FALL

“Hindu Samaj—Sangathan Aur Vighatan” Dr. P. Sahsrabudhe’s book’s extract

The sages behind Aryan culture were those like Agastya and also the saviours like avatars of Shri Raam and Krishna. And in the root of this civilization were Vedas, Yagyas and Sanskrit language. When Lord Ram meets Shri Hanuman the first time, the later talks to him in Sanskrit and Shri Raam is astonished at his chaste language.

At that time in Yagyas animal sacrifice was common and the rituals spoke of going to heaven after death and enjoying there. This is what is taught today in the Semitic religions of Judaism, Christianity and Islam. But gradually opposition arose to the violence in Yagya and enticing people by promise of heaven. Hence to save animal lives, initially it was provided that non-vegetarian food can be eaten only after Yagyas. Later ManuSmriti specified that if anybody remains vegetarian always, he is best practitioner of religion. Then came Buddhist and Jain philosophies where non-violence was given the highest position. It created ripples even in Vedic civilization. The Upanishads stressed spiritualism and opposed the various rituals. Also for common man, they created Puraans with reverence in Gods like Shiva, Vishnu, Ram and Krishna.

Various tribes of that period had their reverence in various animals. These all were accepted as seat of reverence. From the beginning Aryans adopted the policy of accepting all forms of reverence unlike the later religion of Christianity and Islam, which insist that only their God is true and other's false and hence deserve destruction. The difference between Aryan and non-Aryan civilization can be summed up in the words "only" and "also". Whereas the non-Aryan say only my God is true, the others shall be destroyed, Aryan says, yours also is true as mine and together we shall live in peace. Lord Krishna says whatever is brilliant is my part. Thus he made the God omnipresent.

The different efforts made for unity from time to time are evident from the following:

BrahmSootrs: It unified the meaning of different Upanishads.

BhagavadGita: Combination of Upanishads and different paths of devotion comprising Gyaan' (knowledge), Bhakti (devotion), Dhyaan' (meditation) and Karma (work).

Raamaayan': Non-differentiation between Shiva and Vishnu.

Unity of Nation:

That India is a single nation was propagated continuously. In any religious function when a "Sankalp" or resolution is made, the chant speaks of "In Jumboo'Dweepey Bhaarat'Khande" i.e. Bharat as distinct part of Asia is clearly specified. Then another chant spoken at the end "Om Svasti Samaraajyam....." at the end says up to the oceans, there is a single nation. In Jaimini Bhashya (5th Century B.C.) it specifies single nation from Himalayas to Kanyakumari with same linguistic and cultural unity. Chaanakya (4th century B.C.) also confirms a same single kingdom from Himalayas to Kanyakumari. Various religious books confirm this idea by making the sea as the garment covering the body of the nation.

When Alexander invaded India, many republican states strongly opposed him. After the war with the king Puru, Alexander's army was dispirited and refused to go further. They came to know that many more States with army strength of 1-2 Lac were ready for the fight. Greek historians have recorded above and also that the Brahmins would censure the king who would surrender to Alexander and enthrone independent kings to fight him. Alexander executed many such Brahmins and in his wars, 2000 Brahmins sacrificed themselves. Kurtis has written that these people would oppose him strongly and elected to die rather than surrender. When news came of Alexander's death, Hindus destroyed all Greek government flags and other paraphernalia and thus wiped out the edifice of slavery of a foreign king.

This opposition to foreign invaders remained intact till 1200 A.D. This is confirmed by all historians. Immediately on return of Alexander, Chandragupta Maurya raised a large army of Malav and Shudraks and after 10-15 years defeated the Greek commander Selucus and extended his kingdom until the borders of Persia.

Then came king Ashok. He adopted the creed of non-violence after getting initiated into Buddhism. This weakened the resistance power of India. Then came invasion by Demetrius who reached up to Ayodhya. But king Kharbal defeated him. After 4 years, Greek Mevender attacked but commander PushyaMitr' defeated and routed him. This was in 184 B.C. According to Winsent Smith, for 1700 years subsequently there was no invasion on India from west. From 320 B.C. till 528 A.D., for about 800-900 years, there were many invasions by Greek, Shak' and Hun warlords but the Indian kings combined to defeat them and from 600-1200 A.D., the period is considered as the golden period of India.

In India, the Aryans were successful in forging unity amongst various castes such as Dravid', Asur', Naag', Raakshas', Nishaad', Kirat, Kevat', etc. and protected it against foreign invaders. This shows that the Hindu society was capable of confederation.

In 980 A.D. Subuktigin invaded and by defeating Jaipal, conquered Punjab. Then his son Muhammad Gazni from 1001 to 1024, invaded 17 times. And by the end of 12th Century, the kingdom of Gori establishes first in the North West and then gradually over all North India. By 14th Century even South India was conquered. Thus from 1200 A.D. Indian independence was totally eclipsed.

Up to 1200 A.D., the future of India was bright and many republics flourished. Greek historians have detailed this. Deodorus has written that the republics were very compassionate and lawful. The citizens enjoyed full prestige and in bravery, persistence and strength, they were in no way less than other States. At many places, uncontrolled kings were brought down and republics established (whereas today's historians put the French revolution as the birth date of republic statehood).

Both Afghanistan and Baluchistan were Hindu kingdoms up to 8th Century. The grandfather of Muhammad Gori, who established the Muslim kingdom in Delhi, was a Hindu and the Gor area from which he came was also a Hindu habitat. Earlier to him in 11th Century, Muhammad Ghaznavi had invaded India 17 times and committed enormous atrocity by destroying hundreds of temples, converting Lacs of Hindus and killing all others including old, women and children in Lacs. He would imprison younger women, make them slaves and sell in his country.

Then started the invasion by Muhammad Ghori. In the first battle PrithviRaaj Chauhan defeated him but in the second battle he lost. Jaichand did not help PrithviRaaj and had to pay for this by his life. Muhammad continued destroying temples, desecrating idols and looting the money and erecting Masjids in their place.

Later, Bakhtiaar Khilji attacked Naalanda University and destroyed it completely, burnt all the books and killed thousands of Buddha Bhikus.

Efforts were made by Rajputs, Vijayanagar Empire, Marathas and Sikhs against the Muslim kingdom but they failed. We shall study the records of these failures. Most of this information has been either removed from history books or has been shown as merely the efforts of individual Hindu kingdom to increase their own territory. The spirit behind their efforts of overthrowing a foreign invader has been completely wiped out. Hence we shall deal with these aspects in more details merely to show that Hindus' efforts were not lacking even though they may not have achieved full success.

WARS OF INDEPENDENCE AGAINST FOREIGN MUSLIM INVASION

Rajputs – From about 750 A.D. till 1527:

In 8th century Arabs conquered Sindh. At that time Bappa Raawal established his kingdom in Mewaar at Chittor. From Bappa Raawal till Maha Rana Sanga for 800 yrs the Rajputs fought against Muslims and were largely successful in stopping their progress in their area.

The weakness of the Rajputs was that Rajputana had number of kingdoms like Mewaar, Jaipur, Jodhpur, Bikaner etc under different kings each of whom was proud of his lineage. They never would work under a single kingdom.

Vijaynagar 1336 AD till 1652 AD

Under Swami Vidyaranya's guidance the commanders Harihar and Bukka who had converted to Islam were brought back to Hinduism and Harihar established the Vijaynagar kingdom which flourished until 1652 AD when Shahjahan's Army and other Muslim chieftains of South combined and attacked it and destroyed it.

The southern Hindu kingdoms never formed unity against Muslims for their fights also they never ventured out north of Narmada to fight against Muslims.

Marathas 1600 AD till 1800 AD

In 1296 AD Allauddin attacked and captured Devgiri. After that for 300 yrs Muslims ruled over Maharashtra. Then came Shivaji. He got inspired by Samarth' Raamdaas, abandoned the policy of not crossing the sea and built naval fortresses at many locations and established the navy. He also took back into Hindu fold people like Nanaji Palkar and Balaji Nimbalkar and moved out of Maharashtra all over India. But after Shivaji and Sambhaji there was no other strong king of Marathas.

Later came Balaji Vishwanath. He brought unity amongst Marathas and defeated Delhi king and got authority of collecting quarter of the revenue from various states which were looked after by Marathas. Afterwards Bajirao extended the kingdom till Malwa and Bundelkhand and also Gujarat and Karnataka. Finally in 1748 Ahmad Shah Abdali of Afghanistan defeated the Marathas at Panipat. Gradually the Maratha strong men disappeared and the English control extended all over India.

The reason for fall of Marathas was that they extended their kingdom wide spread without consolidating. They also failed to establish gunnery which was already being used by the Muslims. Also they could not establish unity with other communities like Rajputs, Sikhs etc.

Khalsa 1600 AD till 1839 AD

Guru Nanak was born in 1449 and established the Khalsa path. He condemned passivity and Sannyas as also restrictions on traveling abroad. He also removed all partitions of casteism and removed other restrictions on food and diet. He encouraged Muslims to convert to Sikhism which did not find favor with the Muslim Emperor. This started many encounters between Sikhs and Muslim Emperors. Many of their Gurus were executed. After 1769 there were many divisions of Sikhs fighting each other. Then came Maharaja Ranjit Singh. He became king in 1797 and united the Sikhs. He extended his kingdom until Peshawar. However after his death in 1839 his two sons quarreled amongst themselves, the British took advantage and usurped entire Punjab.

British Period – From about 1600 till 1947

The Portuguese started coming to India by about 1500 and the British by about 1600. They started seizing power from 1688 by blockading Bombay and more aggressively from 1750.

Thus it will be seen that from the time the first invasion by Muslims took place, until the British completely took over, there was continuous struggle for independence. Even after British consolidation, in 1857 there was fierce uprising against them by combined strength of Hindus and Muslims. But this was suppressed by the British. Similarly the fight by the Rani of Jhansi in 1857 was also defeated by them. Subsequently the British unleashed an undeclared war and terrorism. All freedom fighters were put in sham courts and punished severely by sending to “Kala Pani” or Andaman Islands and put to solitary confinement. The Country’s wealth was systematically looted. Agriculture was destroyed by system of Jagirdars and excessive land revenue. Various industries were crippled by sending raw materials to England and sending finished products back to India freely. Even medical system of AayurVed’ was discouraged and Allopathy given all out importance and western medicines freely imported at high cost.

AFTER INDEPENDENCE

The policies of successive governments after independence have been “minority centric” and specially Muslim centric due to the policy of appeasement for winning votes. Earlier successive Muslim education ministers completely removed all references to Muslim invasions and enormous atrocities, the efforts of local kings to restore independence have been dubbed as their efforts of extending their kingdom, all birth control efforts have been negated resulting in enormous rise of population, educational and religious institutions of minorities got full freedom to teach their religion but not Hindus, their religious institutions are not touched but Hindu temples have been taken over, riots are all started by Muslims but treated with kid gloves with no firing and various incentives like subsidy in Haj-pilgrimage, special job quotas etc. are given. Christians have been given full freedom in north eastern states but Hindus are not allowed and so on. Gandhi promoted the concept of Sarv’ Dharm’ Samabhaav’ and it was later popularized by anti-Hindu forces to cloud everybody’s mind with this false notion giving rise to the now popular concept that all religions are equal.

Non-violence

Excessive false propaganda has been made in India about Buddhism being a non-violent religion which is far from the truth if you were to examine the character of Buddhist societies all over the world. The story of Prince Siddharth and the bird he saved has been given excessive prominence in our school textbooks to rob the Kshatriya spirit among Hindus from their childhood. In Tibet even though Dalai Lama is considered as one of the Avatars of Buddhism yet he partakes non-vegetarian food. Even Buddha's last meal comprised of non-vegetarian food.

Our own religious texts always speak of continuous war between Devas (deities) and Asurs (Atheists). When these Asurs becomes too strong like Raavan then God himself has to take an Avatar to kill him. Even Sri Krishna says in Geeta that I take Avataar in different ages for protection of good and destruction of bad people. Yet it is unfortunate that Mahatma Gandhi and Congress in the name of Ahimsa allowed this country to be partitioned. It resulted in millions of Hindus being killed and also more millions being driven out of Pakistan and Bangladesh. What kind of Ahimsa is that? This principle of Ahimsa or non-violence was pushed by Mahatma Gandhi to extreme limits due to his Christianized-education aided by his inadequate knowledge and faulty understanding of the true character of Christianity. Earlier to this, the conversion of Emperor Ashok to Buddhism also led to his adoption of non-violence, which considerably weakened Indian States against fight with adversaries as well as to form a greater empire or a single nation of the country. Apart from this, Buddhism also specifies becoming a Sanyasi directly after education or Brahmacharya ashram. This also weakens the will to spend a life in pursuit of prosperity.

Our Shastras have clearly said that though Ahimsa or non-violence is primary duty but violence to uphold religion itself is also a primary aim of religion. One-sided non-violence has never achieved any result. Lord Krishna in MahaaBhaarat' has shown again and again that in order to eliminate sin, if the State has to adopt the some practice of non-religion, it is entirely justified. Mahatma Gandhi also agreed that where non-violence is unable to contain violence, superior force should be used to counter it but then, as usual for him, there has been a wide gap between his agreeing to something and putting that in action. For instance, he declared that the partition of India will be over his dead body. After a few months in 1940 he wrote in his own paper supporting Muslim claim for separate state justifying it as it was justifiable for a Hindu United Family to split. People have chosen to present facts about Gandhi very selectively to suit their individual agendas.

Terrorism cannot be eliminated by handling only individuals when the source remains untouched. It produces more and more new terrorists. Hence only adequate response can be to act against Islam as such, as it is the Quran which teaches hatred towards other religionists. The Western Christian countries cannot be expected to do this as even Bible teaches the same. But Indian Government should respond by gradually acting against Islam through acts like i) banning Haj pilgrimage ii) banning teaching of Urdu, iii) banning Arabic dresses like burquas etc. and also declare that Islam itself may be banned if they do not control such terrorism.

Some "secularists" may criticize this as "communal" thinking. But it is the only way to save Islam. Though majority of Muslims may not be terrorists or their supporters but all carry desire to convert the whole world into Islam as all Christians think of Christianizing the whole world. Like the story of a naughty boy who was not disciplined by his mother from doing theft and rowdism grew to become a dacoit and robber and ultimately sentenced to death, similarly early harsh steps can only be for the real good of Muslims and the world. Otherwise consider the following scenario: Pakistan uses its atomic power and bombs four to five Indian cities and kills or maims 10 millions or 1 cores Indians. In retaliation it also has same loses. India loses less than 1% population but for Pakistan it is more than 7 to 8% and may even face that Islam itself may be banned completely from India. And Pakistan economy itself would be completely destroyed.

Loyalty

The Aryan culture gives lot of importance to loyalty of a person whether he a servant, employee or the loyalty to the country. From this has come the concept of "Namak Haraam", which means one who remains true to the salt he has partaken, i.e. he should remain true to his employer. This was the practice followed by Rajputs for their masters, i.e. the Muslim Emperors, whom they were serving at that time.

However, in case of Muslims and Christians their religions have entirely different principles. They are taught to become loyal only to their religion and consider Hindus as their enemies. Though Muslims kings would be fighting against each other, but as soon as they found that Hindu kings are consolidating they would immediately become one against Hindus. This unity was always lacking in Hindus.

Chapter 5

ARE CHRISTIANITY AND ISLAM RELIGIONS?

This chapter is specifically for those Hindus and Dharmaachaaryas who follow Gandhi's slogan of "Sarvadharm' Samabhaav", i.e. equality of all religions. Before they speak of this, they should understand what the other religions teach without blindly believing Gandhi. It is also to properly study the great danger in the form of black clouds of storm which are enveloping the Vedic religions and Aryan culture.

Now we shall first consider the Semitic religions. Though even in these there is large number of differences. Many considered all the three, i.e. Judaism, Christianity and Islam as Semitic but the Christian regard themselves as separate and non-Semitic. However, since there is a large agreement amongst the main principles, we will regard all of these as Semitic.

All the three religions consider a single book as their primary source. This book they consider to have been the voice of God himself given to a specific representative who is their promoter. Jews regard the Old Testament as revealed to Moses; Christians regard the New Testament (Bible) as given to Christ and Muslim regard Koran as the revelation to Mohammad from God. The three have many points of agreement as well as disagreement. Jews accept that the revelation by God started from Moses but new prophets can also come who will also get further revelation from God. But Christian and Muslims consider that their promoters, i.e. Christ and Mohammad were the first and last who got the revelation. Nobody can either add or subtract or change anything in their books. There is no philosophy on which these religions are based and hence nobody can argue intelligently with them.

Even though they are all followers of a single book, there are at least 1000 sects of Christianity who regard themselves all as independent. A person belonging to one sect will not go to the Church of another sect. Similarly Islam has more than 300 sects. From this it should be quite clear that God has given human beings independent thinking power due to which he is not able to confine himself to either a single book or knowledge or sect and has to make different interpretations. A full recognition to this human trait is given only in the Vedic civilization. Here different sects have complete freedom by which they formulate their own rituals in worship of God or even to challenge the acceptance of God himself. Nowhere else in the world such freedom is enjoyed.

To deny the variety or differences of this earth is to deny God himself and thereby to insult Him who has created this world and who loves His entire creation. By worshipping only a single part and denying others, means that these people worship not the God who is omnipresent but they limit themselves in worship to a small part of Him. This means that they are worshipping not God but a small deity. The Vedic tradition of looking at the whole through the parts is the only way to see God.

The Real face of Christianity:

1. From recent books it is evident that Christianity is an offshoot of Buddhism. The first promoter of Christianity was not Christ but Apollonius of Tina. He prescribed complete vegetarian food and abstinence of alcohol. However the King Constantine was not willing for this hence these restrictions were removed and the promoter was also replaced by Jesus Christ who was willing to accept this. After this the entire literature published by Tina as also the library of Alexandria was burnt. But the Chairman of library removed quietly some of the books of Tina which surfaced against after many years.

2. At the next stage Queen Theodora further removed all resemblance with any eastern religion. Hence acceptance of rebirth was abandoned. Then followed a systematic destruction of all Hindu temples throughout Europe. There were two temples with idols about 18 and 20 feet tall at Nevali Cori in Turkey. St. Gregory attacked and destroyed these temples in 304 AD. Later all Hindu temples at Rome and other European areas were destroyed by 4th century AD. The Hindus were forcibly converted to Christianity.

3. It is believed that Jesus was born of Virgin Mary and after sacrifice on Cross he became alive again. But this is denied by his closest disciple Saint Thomas who also opposed some of the other teachings of Bible. Due to this reference to Saint Thomas was gradually removed from Bible.

4. Like the Buddhist practice the preachers and nuns are supposed to lead unmarried life but this created many illicit sexual relations with students and nuns.

5. In spite of royal patronage it was not easy to spread Christianity hence extreme torture with special tools for inhuman treatment was practiced in castles like that of Nuremburg in Germany.

6. When Islam started spreading in Europe they resorted to what is known as Crusade. Under this in Jerusalem millions of Muslims were killed and literally a river of blood was flowing.

7. Christianity spread in North and South America and in other places by mass killing of population there.

8. If one sees the type of oath given to Jesuits, the Christian philosophy would become evident. It asks the new Jesuits to work as spy in a peaceful foreign country and try to win their confidence. He should create atmosphere of jealousy and hatred amongst people and create internal dissension. All this with the aim of converting the people to Christianity or killing them. The same methods were adopted by British, Portuguese and French in India.

9. Even though Christianity is against accumulation of wealth, the European society has always practiced the opposite.

10. Before 200 yrs many scientists were killed merely because their findings were opposite to what Bible says. For example that earth moves round the sun and not the Sun around the Earth.

11. India gave refuse to Syrian Christians who were persecuted in Iran. Yet they worked like a spy and invited Vasco De Gama to attack India and they sided with him against the Kerala kings.

12. Saint Xavier's followers in Goa under the Portuguese forcefully converted Hindus into Christianity with enormous cruelty and killings.

13. Jesus Christ as well as their other saints in Bible teach that they have not come for peace on this earth but to create hatred against those who practice other religion. Saint Loyala prescribes that even unborn children of other religionists should be killed by taking out the fetus from mother's womb and dashing it against a wall. And such a cruel person is known a saint.

14. In India they have adopted the fraudulent system of copying Hinduism and appearing as a part of it. Though they are opposed to idol worship but they have adopted the idols of Christ and Mary. They have given Christ 4 hands by copying the idol of Vishnu in Hinduism. They have also incorporated in their new Bible many of the literature from Vedas and Upanishads. In Kerala they have even started claiming that Vijaya Dashami and ShivRaatri are Christian celebrations being imitated by Hindus. They have adopted various means of underground activities for such conversion by adopting false Hindu names and also adopting Hindu traditions in their Churches even in the form of images and statues. Even the famous Tamil classic "Tirukkural" by saint Tiruvalluvar have been christened as a Christian book and being taught as belonging to Christ. This is an extreme form of cheating. In other countries like Malaysia it is a crime to use the word Allah for God by other religionists. If even common words like Neem or Basmati rice can be used exclusively for produce of India and Pakistan, it is wrong to use the intellectual heritage of Vedas and Upanishads by plagiarism.

15. Mahatma Gandhi ridiculed the belief of Christians that the sacrifice of Christ once is enough to pardon the sins of all his followers for all time to come. He asked how sacrifice of one person can be repentance for the sins of others.

From the major changes introduced in Christianity by King Constantine, Queen Theodora and subtle changes being done now by borrowing from Hindu scriptures and customs, it is evident that the claim that Bible is word of God and nothing can be changed or added, is false. Rather Christianity is not a religion but a cloak over cheating and fraud practiced to spread imperialism of the white Christians. Yet Christians speak to Hindus of worshipping Satan. By resort to enormous resources of western countries that send billions of dollars for conversion, all sorts of fraudulent means are adopted for conversion, even though hordes of white Christians are abandoning it. It should be considered a criminal act to uproot people from their roots and culture and should be punished as such.

Islam

The practice of Islam is in no way different than Christians. Only the method of propagation is different. Islam uses the method of terrorism, which was practiced earlier by Christians. Islam was spread from the very beginning by sword when Mohammad converted the Arabs by attacking and killing (including his uncle Hasham) who were not willing to convert from Hinduism which was the main religion then in Mecca having ShivLingam and idols of various goddesses. Also his army consisted of people who did not have any religious aim but were rewarded freely by loot of wealth of persons killed and freedom to rape women who were taken prisoners. This practice still continues. Islam is like a primitive tribal society which keeps people as slaves with brutal threats and action. It even teaches brutality by killing of animals gradually by slow bleeding instead of a quick blow. All this creates beasts out of human beings, yet it is they in Saudi Arabia who insult other religionists as pigs and monkeys. They consider it an act of great bravery when a fully armed terrorist kills many innocent unarmed people.

In India for every small matter, they create opposition by saying that this is against their religion, e. g., singing Vande Maataram. But when it is of advantage to them, they never bother not to take such advantage. Consider the following examples:

1. According to Koran itself, the pilgrimage of Haj should be carried out by a person from his own hard earned earnings specially after he has completed all his worldly activities of earning money etc. Yet they are accepting Govt. of India's subsidy in this and going even at a young age.

2. Islam is against all forms of entertainment like singing, dancing, painting, sculpturing, photography or acting in cinemas and theaters, etc. But there are plenty of Muslims who are involved in all these activities because it brings to them lot of wealth.

3. It is against Muslim principles to worship in a Dargaah (a burial place of a Saint). Yet this is being practiced and is very popular in India.

4. They are opposed to singing Vande Maataram by saying that this depicts the country in the form of an idol. But this is wrong. Their children do not mind speaking to strangers by calling them uncle. Merely by such calling the elder does not become an uncle.

5. Nowadays since it is compulsory to have a photograph for passport, visa, etc. and other identification, they are readily having their photographs taken. In today's age, many Muslim households have photographs of the Kaba of Mecca in their houses.

6. The Muslims are now regularly taking bank loans and also paying interest.

7. They are very strict about observing Muslim rituals and culture in the marriage ceremony and insist that they will not be following either civil law or the country's laws about restriction on Marriage etc. Yet whereas in Arabian countries it is the girl's parents who demand money for giving away their daughter in marriage, in India it is just reverse that the dowry is given by the girl's parents.

8. Any effort to transfer illegal construction of Mosque or burial place for widening of roads or clearing pavements etc. creates Muslim riots in India. Yet in Saudi Arabia itself the government has pulled down Mohammad's own house, the grave of Mohammad's daughter was also broken and removed and also in one of the houses of Mohammad's wife a toilet has been constructed for general public. All this has been done in the name of improvement of the city.

9. The Babri Masjid has no religious significance for Muslims but for Hindus it is a prime location like Mecca and Medina for Muslims. Instead of creating goodwill with Hindus by surrendering it they want to spite Hindus to show Muslim dominance even now.

Mr. Parvez writing for magazine Hindu Voice (Nov 2009) says following as to why he left Islam. He wanted to know who actually wrote Koran and searched for information at University of Birmingham Library. He was shocked to find that when Muhammad received the first verses of Koran in a cave, he came home to his wife and telling her that Satan had visited him and given these verses. He asks how can Koran claimed to be from God be delivered by Satan. It certainly does not teach people to be better human beings with decency, peace, justice, love, kindness etc. In his search he found that Muhammad had terrible qualities of sexual immorality, debauchery, hatred, jealousy, selfish ambition, envy, orgies and the like.

After this he says he had no trouble in leaving Muhammad and sleeping peacefully.

Often their clergy make their own interpretations of the verses to fool people. For example the verses exhorting Muslims to kill non-Muslims, depending on situation are wrongly interpreted as meant for non-believers. However there is no reason to kill a person merely because he is an atheist. Though people blamed only Muslims for intolerance but the entire process started by the white Jews and Christians and their arrogance of superiority which first led to writing of Bible, both Old Testament and New Testament. The mass killing of Muslims in Jerusalem has already been indicated earlier. Though they do not practice such cruelty now but the methods of falsehood and cheating etc. for conversion are seen everywhere.

Again it is emphasized that the deficiencies in the Semitic religions pointed out above is not for denigration but to enable them to change by introspection so that all religions truly confirm to bring about a life of real spirituality which can enable people to live happily in this world as well as next. Also since other religionists have no qualms in criticizing Hinduism even on false grounds, why they should find it objectionable to hear critical comments about themselves. Hinduism itself has been undergoing transformation for thousands of years and will continue to do so. The criticism is not of religious practice or how to worship god and its rituals but only about the intolerance towards other religionists. As explained earlier all rituals of animal sacrifice from Vedas were deleted. Similar is the need for removing all objectionable portions of Bible and Quran. As long as they do not remove the portions dealing with killing of innocent merely for following alternate path, have intolerance towards freedom of speech, worship and stop forced and fraudulent means of conversions, these sects cannot be called religion at all.

The aim of this booklet as explained earlier is to present history truthfully so that the whole universe learns from past mistake and progresses towards a new level of civilization. The Western society has progressed much both economically and ethically. Whereas many false and prejudicial writings have been made by them against Indian civilization, while a few Western scholars themselves have refuted this but they happen to be exceptions to the rule. Even today the prime university of USA (Harvard) has thousands of scholars in humanity studying south Asia which purposely denigrates Hinduism with the same prejudiced mind and stresses on the past of caste, oppression of women and Dalits, Aryan migration from west etc. Compared to this China is treated deferentially. Such prejudices need to be curbed.

Hindus should aggressively pursue various Muslim & Christian communities to reconvert them into Hinduism. They should explain the superiority of Hinduism in its philosophy, universality and tolerance of different views. Sometime back almost 40 thousand Rajputs who were forcibly converted to Islam now have been reconverted into Hinduism. Various thinking Christians also have now realized the folly of conversion and hollowness of Christian beliefs. They need to be pursued and explained the various differences and superior thinking of Hindu philosophy.

MEETING THE CHALLENGE

Both Christians and Muslims on the strength of their money power are trying to convert entire India into their religion. Also both these religions suppress all forms of freedom of speech and action or independent investigation both by false propaganda as well as terrorism. It is no way less than communism. Hindus may want to ponder over what Mr. Geert Wilden of Holland spoke in United States in September 2008 “presently Europe is on the last stage of Islamization. There are many such Muslim residential colonies where local people are afraid of either living or even in going. Women cannot enter these areas without covering their head. Koran teaches its religionists for forceful conversion hence it can only be compared with either communism or Nazism. Even a small group of such people when they come together with their violent behaviour are able to control much larger number of people”.

In India, already the Jehadis of Pakistan (with the help of its Government) were attacking India. Subsequently Bangladeshis have started flooding the country and almost 30 million such people are illegally staying in India. Apart from this even millions of Bengali Hindus have been driven out of Bangladesh and millions are still coming. Even the Christians are not far behind in conversion efforts.

The Delhi Magistrate Z. S. Lohar in a petition against Koran had observed that by reading it, it is evident that many of the verses of Koran are objectionable and spread hatred between Islam and other religions.

If this Aryan civilization which is more than 20 thousand years old is allowed to die, this will be a great catastrophe not only for India but for the entire world because the western civilizations (both Christianity and Islam based) cannot sustain life for long. If one has to see the difference of civilization it will be enough to compare the life in the adjacent countries of India and Pakistan. Both countries have the same stock of people and the conversion has taken place essentially in the last thousand years. Yet Mrs. Albright Madeline who was Secretary of State under previous President Clinton of U.S.A. recently spoke (Mumbai Mirror – 1st February 09”) that “Pakistan is today the world’s most dangerous country. It has atom bomb, fundamentalism, poverty, corruption and extremely uncertain government”. Pakistan was always been a thorn for India and U.S.A. has always been favouring Pakistan. India had warned U.S.A. again and again but yet it remained oblivious to its danger from Pakistan. Even in India, this is so with secularists.

The greatness of India is entirely a gift from Aryan civilization, which gives complete freedom of speech and action to all communities, their thoughts and activities and yet maintains an overall unity between all. If we have to maintain such a freedom, we will have to make full efforts for its protection and also simultaneously whatever dirt and dust has entered into our own religion, we have to clear it. For this we have to have a very long term of vision of at least 1000 years to make our policies. This was the same principle on which our sages kept their vision, but unfortunately today’s political as well as economical leaders are concerned only for the next 5 to 10 years until new election takes place.

We shall now consider some reforms which are necessary for a glorious future.

1. POLITICAL REFORMS

Today politics is riding over all the activities of the country. Hence this requires improvement at topmost priority.

Election system:

In today's system due to multiple candidates a person with a backing of merely 25% of voters (at 50% voting, it means only 12.5% of electorate) can enable a person to win the election. Hence there is continuous effort by political parties to create such a small group by various means of appeasement for en-mass voting. This is hardly a democratic institution where a small minority is able to rule and vast majority has no voice. Tribals and poor are purchased by liquor and money. Others are forced by threats. Hence many anti-social elements easily win the elections. Even the communist party adopts force and threats at village level. Apart from this it is highly costly and hence politicians recover their expenditure after elections by various unethical ways leading to corruption all-round. Becoming an MP or MLA is today the easiest way of becoming a crorepati with shameless looting of government funds with no questions asked.

We shall therefore consider a new system essentially based on old Indian tradition. This present system was thrust on us by the English, even though it is not suitable even for their small country. Mahatma Gandhi had been opposed to it from the beginning. In the London Round Table Conference in 1931 he proposed that the Indian system of Panchayats of villages where the Panchas are elected/nominated by the population or communities. And these Panchas then select the higher nominees of State Assemblies and Central Parliament. Even after independence he was working on this and just a day before his murder, he had prepared an article based on above. Based on the same principles the author proposes that in every village a section of population of 500 people (100 families) elect 1 Pancha as their representative. They have the authority to recall the Pancha and replace him by a new person at anytime of their choice. Even for the State assembly any 200 Panchas of the State having common interest can elect their representative for the assembly. In case of Lok Sabha he can be elected by the Panchas of each district.

All this should be party-less. It is not necessary to have a Government party and an opposition simply because in such a vast country there will be representatives having different background with different thinking and requirements. They will all be working for their own State or district and therefore there will be sufficient alternative thinking over each matter and all points of view shall have representation as even the smallest group comprising less than 0.01% of population will have representation through Panchas. All communities will get full representation at all levels.

Today many small parties operating at State level send their representatives to the Lok Sabha. These people are incapable of thinking about the progress of the entire nation. They combine with the party having majority and their aim is to look after their own State or their party's interest. It will be preferable if a party which does not get even 10% of the votes of the entire country, should not have the choice of fighting the Lok Sabha elections. Today even a communist party who proclaims itself against religion is willing to co-operate with such party like the fundamentalist Muslim League. (Though the communists declare themselves as the party of poor people but in practice its policies are not only anti-poor but also anti-national. Before independence they co-operated with the English rather than nationalists. Though this party characterizes religious parties as fundamentalist and against reforms, it itself operates on the same principles. Whatever has been written by Marx is considered to be God's word, even though in the last 50 years all countries following his doctrine have rejected this. Today for the sake of power they are willing to abandon all their principles. None of the parties have any principles excepting a show of "Secularism" but in actual practice it is shark communism. This is mainly to win and remain in power. Hence the best way is to get rid of this party system all together.

Once the elections are freed from money power and muscle power then the entire government (both leaders as well as officers) can be saved from corruption as the need of excessive money for maintaining the party and fighting elections will be over. The country's image would vastly improve. The previous caste system has been abandoned on the basis of allegations that it accentuates differences and spreads hatred. But the same thing is being promoted through the present elections and party system. From the above it should be apparent that today India cannot be called a democratic country at all.

Sadhu Rangarajan writes in Hindu Voice (Nov 09) that today's Hindu politicians are vying with each other to prove themselves to be greater Jayachands than the one who betrayed Prithviraj and invited Muhammad Ghor to invade this country. Their utter selfishness and materialistic goals have prompted them to be enemies their own brethren in their own motherland. They are out to destroy all Hindu culture.

Is USA a democracy?

If we consider on similar lines, the election of US president involves spending of many thousand crores by each Presidential candidate. From where does this money come? Obviously by raising funds from various sources. But the major part is from multinational companies, who later on expect and get its return in various forms like incentives and help from government after the President is elected. Thus the President entirely represents rich people and large companies' interest and not the vast majority of common people. The other western countries are not different in any way. How can they be called Democracies, nor can India be called so.

Panchaayat Government:

For thousands of years our villages have been self sufficient and all the work in the villages was attended to by the local Panchaayat including raising taxes and development. There cannot be any thing more decentralized than this. The need is to allow the Panchayats same authority as the municipalities of larger towns specially as regards raising of taxes. Panchaayat should be allowed to tax the agricultural produce at the rate of 5-16 % of produce. Similarly they should be allowed to tax Pukka houses at 1% of its value every year. Finally they should levy a fees equivalent to 1 day's income of a person per month. If he cannot afford to give the tax in cash such persons (between the age 16-70 yrs) should be asked to work for Panchaayat 1 day a month as free. If we consider 70 crores of people having an average income of 120 per day then in 12 months they can contribute a tax of Rs. 100,000 crores. Such an amount can revolutionize all villages of the country. Just as drops of water collect finally to make a big river, similarly small taxes from all the population can contribute huge resources for the country. Panchaayat staff should not be regarded as government servants but paid directly as per village Panchaayat norms. Also there should be continuous local audit to avoid corruption. This can be under the Lok Pal system as explained later.

2. JUDICIAL REFORMS:

Even this is an extremely complicated system thrust on us by the British mainly to thwart appeals against their high handedness. As in ancient times the vast majority of cases should be solved by local arbitration and Panchayats and at the most by the lower courts. As indicated earlier, even in 500 BC the Greek Teshias had praised highly the Hindu system of justice.

The present judicial process was designed by the British to protect its officers and MNCs (multinational companies). It is very elaborate, time consuming and costly. Adjournments are given without rhyme or reason. Too much importance is given to lawyers and their argumentative power rather than seeking to establish truth. The lawyers also take advantage by charging fancy fees even though the court fees are nominal. The judge plays a minimal part and allows the lawyers to argue out at length and all efforts are made by either side to twist facts to protect their clients. Even confession of a culprit is not accepted.

As against above, Chaanakya Neeti suggests that as soon as a plaintiff comes to the court with a grievance, it is the judge who should closely question both parties and try to bring out uncolored truth. In present times, the judge should appoint court lawyers for both sides. Their fees should be included in court fees. In the first interrogation, these lawyers should only take notes and not argue. They should then submit their note to both parties who should be allowed to modify or add only which does not conflict their statements before the judge. Regular hearings must start after a month. If any private lawyer is brought by either party, he should also be allowed to argue. Maximum 1 or 2 adjournments may be allowed (not more than 15 days each time) with payment of fees. No other adjournment should be allowed and all hearings completed within 6 months. The judgment should come within next three month. A judge who delays matters should be penalized.

Partiality:

By an earlier decision Supreme Court had decided that the municipalities have full freedom to remove all religious structure, which come in the way in widening of roads. Based on this many Hindu temples were broken and removed but when it started to act on Muslim places there were riots and Supreme Court quickly altered its earlier decision and stopped the Municipality to take further steps. This shows a clear case of partiality and cowardice. Even after the Godhra episode of burning of railway coach with passengers, Supreme Court appointed a special investigating agency but never acted when in Kashmir more than 4 lakh Hindus have been displaced and also the excessive atrocities on the Hindu population there. Nor did they act when the Congress leaders created riots against Sikhs after murder of Indira Gandhi. It seems that the justices are affected more by newspapers and television views and not by actual facts presented to them.

Supreme Courts Chief Justice Kirpal formed a Constitution bench of 11 Judges and decided that there should be no reverse partiality towards minorities and more favorable consideration of minority institution than the majority. Yet both the government and the Courts continue to favour the minorities and disregard the earlier decision.

It is high time that the judges are also regarded as normal human beings with all frailties and systems of checks and balances introduced like all other places. At all high court levels either the Chief Justice or similar authority should continuously monitor the working of all judges and there should be provisions for litigants to complain against delays and too many adjournments as well as skewed judgments. The whole judicial system can be made self sufficient by imposing heavy penalties on the mischievous parties.

3. Lok Pal:

To deal with corruption at all levels, the effort should start from the root level itself. All government offices should have at least one Lok Pal representative who can be continuously approached by public for their grievances or by himself inspect files to see if there is purposeful delay in disposal of files which is the main tool for corruption.

On top of Pyramids should be an authority comprising President, Prime Minister, Leader of Opposition and two more senior judges (either working or retired) to deal with all complaints against people in authority or influence who thwart action against them. A special investigating agency should work directly under this authority who can even direct all (including President) to vacate office or take leave until cleared by the inquiry.

Nationalism:

It is necessary to consider the national interest as supreme. A Sanskrit Shlok' mentions that abandon an individual for the sake of family, a family for the sake of a village, a village for the sake of a State and the entire world for the sake of one's soul. This means that the interest of the majority would receive greater priority than that of minority. Many people regard the universal interest as greater than that of national interest. However even if the principle is correct, one has to be realistic and as long as there is not one single world government it is necessary to keep the national interest as supreme. All the national work and laws must reflect the teaching of the above Shlok'. Even the religion should be subservient to national interest. Hence when our religion says that Ahimsa Paramo Dharm', it follows by what it says Dharm' Himsa Tathai' Ch' which means that even if non violence is supreme, violence for maintaining the supremacy of Dharm' is equally or greater good. India has suffered heavily due to stress of non violence unilaterally. Hence it should be avoided and the principle should be to meet violence with greater violence. A bully must be destroyed by employing much greater strength. If we just stick to ahimsa then we will suffer the same fate as the original communities of North and South America, Australia, New Zealand, etc. Stronger nations will come and take over the country.

4. RELIGIOUS REFORMS:

Sanaatan' Dharm', the universal supreme principles, does not mean religion but affirms the superiority of one's duty in his life than his right. It is necessary that Sanaatan' Dharm' is accepted as the guiding principle of life in this country in the Constitution and any religion, which is not compatible with it is declared unacceptable. Sanaatan' Dharm' does not ask its followers to believe in God or religion. It incorporates the universal principles of ethics which applies to entire human society and gives full freedom to all to have independent thoughts, speech and action as long as it does not disturb other members of society. It is a far superior principle than the narrow concept of "secularism" among religions.

Sanaatan' Dharm' has been variously defined. Above we have said about non-violence. The next important is Truth "Satyam Cha Amritam Chaiv' Es Dharm' Sanaatan". ManuSmriti gives various other qualifications. It says perseverance, forgiveness, self control, and non-stealing, and purity, control of senses, intelligence, knowledge, truth and non-anger as ten principles of dharma. The introduction of Islam and Christianity and their narrow mindedness upset this in India. In order to save the world we will have to resurrect it.

The basic principle of Sanaatan' Dharm' is that we should not treat others in any way which we ourself find offensive. Hence the main principles are non violence, truth, non-stealing, simple life & restrained sexual life. Apart from this all those principles apply which take the life on this Universe to highest level, so that human beings as well as society can live with happiness and peace and also they do not destroy the inherent wealth of the world by excessively luxurious life which will make the life miserable for future generations. In this method, worship of God or its rituals come under the name of "Sampradaay" or sect. The path of worship of God and its rituals (known as religion) as prescribed by a special individual (Prophet) comes under this Sampradaay or sect. Even Christianity and Islam are also merely Sampradaays. We also have similar sects in India like Buddhism, Jainism, Shaiva, Vaishnav etc. Mahatma Gandhi also agreed that above five principles should be universally adopted as if primary importance in all Constitutions of world. This is the basic principle due to which Aryan Civilization became so famous.

A Charter of Compassion has recently come-up as a unique web-based platform where religious leaders from across the globe calls for return to ancient principle that any scripture breeding violence or hatred is illegitimate. It calls for youth to be encouraged to appreciate cultural and religious diversity and empathy with suffering of all human beings and treat others as we wish to be treated ourselves. It calls to always refrain from inflicting pain to others by action or speech even for enemies. The affirmers of charter include Dalai-Lama, Jordan's queen Noor, Deepak Chopra, Egypt's Grand Mufti Sheik Ali Gomaa as well as previous Catholic nun Karen Armstrong. Thousands from hundred countries have added their voice (Times of India 16th November 2009). The Charter is quite similar to the Sanaatan' Dharm' principles. There is nothing new in this. Emperor Ashok put rock edicts in his reign about 250 BC of similar principals earlier.

The main thing is only those sects are allowed to function in this country whose rituals or teachings are not against the principles of Sanaatan Dharma. In case of Islam and Christianity since they are intolerant and violent towards other sects they should be unacceptable. Saudi Arabia bans practice of all other religions in its country and specially in case of Hindus even tears up the pictures of deities, then there is no reason why India should not ban both Islam and Christianity as long as the verses both in Kuran and Bible contain such portions which spread hatred and violence towards others. The ban should be at least to the extent Saudi Arabia uses against other religions. But as explained earlier it is Islam which makes human beings as beasts. Others are not allowed to have their places of worship (temple etc) nor are they allowed to do their rituals even privately. If they do it before any Arab they are thrown out of the country. They are not even allowed to take food before any Arab and specially, during the period of Ramadan they must take food in hiding. Their women must dress like Arabian women specially by covering their head. The Muslim can openly denounce and insult other religion but if any body speaks even a small criticism of Islam or Kuran he faces the death sentence.

In Europe the secular principle was established when they wanted to remove the interference of the Church from State matters. This principle was then thrust on India also and it was made anti religious. So much so that the teaching of religion was banned only on Hindus. Against this the French journalist Franco Gautier mentions that in Europe in all schools the Christian religion and its rituals are taught.

The principles of Sanaatan' Dharm' give full freedom to a person in his beliefs. It does not matter whether he accepts God or not. For example the Saankhya principle of the sage Kapil in its original form is atheist. Similarly Buddhism and Jainism are silent about God and all these come within Sanaatan' Dharm'. The main thing is that those belonging to one sect should not harshly criticize or become violent against another sect. These principles therefore are of the highest standard possible. Earlier USA and other western countries combined together to oppose Russia and its communism because of the lack of freedom of speech. But in case of religion the same Christian countries are doing just the opposite. Basically the population of western countries are now gradually abandoning Christianity. But still the problem is that the same countries are sending enormous money in undeveloped countries to spread Christianity. Both these religions of Christianity and Islam are extremist; believe that only their own religion should be acceptable. There should be no freedom of speech or expression and want to stick to the original thinking which is more than 2000 year old. Otherwise they do not mind using violence. Hence just in case of communism where all the western countries combined to finish it, in the same way now to maintain similar freedom of individual faith India should take the lead and in association with other Asian countries like China, Japan, Korea etc should ensure that the violent teachings of Bible and Kuran are removed.

'Secularists' may be offended by the above suggestions, but it is not against religious practices only against inhuman intolerant behaviour camouflaged as religions. Religion should be for enhancing ethical values of life in this universe.

Today in the world people have come under the influence of various mediums of propaganda like internet, TV, radio, newspaper etc. and they have become addicted and slaves of the media. Though they feel that they are free but there is no time for free thinking or studying. Therefore they have become like animals to follow instruction of their masters, in this case the media. Further the media itself is being controlled by various unknown agencies clandestinely by back seat driving.

For detailed understanding of Sanaatan' Dharm' please refer to author's earlier book "Indian Economic and Social Tradition".

Conversion:

There should be a ban on conversion of poor as well as tribal people because only on the basis of money they are being converted and separated from their surroundings and traditions. The Niyogi commission in its report 1956 has drawn attention to the various illegal activities of various Christian missionaries. They make the poor and tribals to attend Bible classes compulsorily. If they fall sick, in their hospital they are put under intense pressure to convert. In their schools in the various functions the cross is shown to defeat all other sects. The poor are given loan only when they abandon the various signs of Hinduism like Tilak, Shikha, Bindi, Mehendi, etc. and their loans are pardoned if the entire family converts to Christianity.

It is necessary to form a new party as BJP itself is now no longer a party of committed cadres and main leaders have become slaves of power. What is required is a party whose members take an oath that they will not join any alliance which will not introduce Sanaatan Dharm as the guiding principle of Constitution, and create self sufficient villages with party-less nominated method of electoral reform as explained earlier. Baba Ramdev is toying with the idea of transforming the system by "honest people". However this is only a mirage until the system itself is changed. Hence we should concentrate on changing the system.

Reforms in Hinduism:

We have already dealt with Sanaatan Dharm and its principles. Now we shall deal with the reforms within Hinduism.

Nationalism:

As has been explained earlier there can be many nations following the same religion. Yet each country tries to put pressure on another country for its own benefits and also even wants to extend its boundaries as has been recorded in the earlier history. Hence on all such days like Independence Day, Republic Day etc. the day should not be declared has a holiday but various functions should be held which should teach devotion to the nation through lectures, drama etc, In all schools (weather a Madrassa or Christian) there should be lectures on the basic principles of all sects of the world and also about their beliefs and festivals. All these should be the aim of reducing the distance between them and examinations should be held on religion covering all sects. Those who are not able to pass the examination they should not get government job or any other facility. Apart from knowledge of other sects a student should also get deeper knowledge of his own sects so that he can practice it scientifically.

5. ECONOMIC REFORMS

After Independence all political parties (including BJP) have been blindly copying the western civilization of USA and Europe and have adopted the capitalist, consumerist economic system. Due to this the natural resources of the country are being used without abandon and the environment has been polluted extensively. Our old sages when they used to make new policies they use to look far ahead in future up to even 1000 years ahead and what will be the effect on new generations. But today's politicians are interested only for next 5 to 10 years and the industrialist for the next 20-30 years. They are least bothered about the next generations.

Self-sufficient villages:

At the root of ancient economic system was self-sufficiency at the level of individual villages. In this the cows and bullocks had a great role. The produce of cows comprising its dung, urine would give the fuel and fertilizer required as also pesticide and the bullock used to give the muscle power for the agricultural operations as well as for transport of goods and human beings. By blindly copying the west we have now come to the economy based on oil. But oil is available only for a brief period. For making a temporary gain we are losing our permanent assets. It is still necessary that we bring back the village economy to its original self sufficiency specially, as regards food, fuel, fertilizer, fodder, pesticide and such basic needs.

(i) Fuel – Instead of subsidizing kerosene and diesel their prices should be allowed to increase. Instead the waste products of agriculture as well as domestic bio waste which have no other value should be converted into coal and gas and used as fuel. Some of these are the leaves of sugarcane plant, the waste of crop of sesame and mustard (sarson) etc. These give millions of tonnes of such products. By using these agri-waste as fuels (after converting into charcoal) lakhs of people can get employed and considerable import of oil can be stopped.

(ii) Fertiliser - Instead of using chemical fertilizers, organic fertilizer based on cow dung and domestic waste can be used to produce gas for fuel and the by-product being fertilizer which will be equally good.

(iii) Irrigation - Instead of having large dams, every village should have a small one on the nallah draining the village water. Also in all rivers which dry up after monsoon there should be small bundhs every half a kilometer and this should be about 1 to 1.5 m height. This will ensure availability of water in all rivers over the whole year.

(iv) Ploughing - Tractors should be discouraged and bullock should be used for ploughing the field. Use of chemical fertilizers makes the earth hard and needs stronger and stronger tractors. But organic farming requires least ploughing. Fukuoka of Japan has even proved that under such circumstances no ploughing will be necessary.

Patenting should not be allowed in agricultural products in the name of dangerous genetic modifications. This is essentially for creating monopoly for multinational companies. Similarly patenting of medicines should only have right of royalty for the period and not monopoly in manufacturing to help poor and diseased person.

Employment scheme such as National Rural Employment Guarantee Scheme guaranteeing 100 days job is complete waste of money. These scheme should be only for temporary relief during period of extreme distress, like droughts, floods, etc. Otherwise money should be used for regular permanent asset creation like irrigation projects, roads, schools etc. The stress should be on less mechanization which is automatically ensured creation of more jobs and regular real assets with full engineering planning.

Economic Policy

Capitalist and consumerist policy has failed even in USA and Europe and their economic situation have already received a jolt. And yet we continue to blindly follow it. This is because all the government officers have become graduates on the courses of western universities. They have no idea of the ancient tradition of this country. Hence all that they know is to increase GDP and for this they are willing to adopt the same western practices of reducing interest rate and taxation and to encourage people to take loans and spend money. This creates an artificial demand which merely helps multi-national companies. Instead of this we should adopt our ancient tradition of simple living and high thinking and also to minimize the use of natural resources possible. Also we should adopt an employment based economic orientation instead of machine based as explained below. Multinational companies are dangerous. India was enslaved by the aggressive expansion and interest of East India Co. It is no different even today. Iraq was made to pay heavy price for its oil by the war declared by USA illegally by false allegation of armaments of mass destruction.

Industry

We are copying the west in putting up industries based on maximum usage of machinery instead of human beings. And the machines are also getting more and more automated. This means that job creation is very small. The government policies in taxes are also encouraging this policy. Government gives high rates of depreciation and development rebate on the value of investment on machines. This encourages costly automated machines. What we require is encouragement in creating employment and tax benefit on number of people employed.

Unlimited wealth creates jealousy and demand from others to compete or equal and gives rise to extensive corruption at all levels.

Labour:

After independence Indian government has given excessive protection in the working area. The result of such protection together strength of unionism has created too much indiscipline and excessive unlimited demand for wages and perquisites. This is also one of the reasons for excessive automation by the industry and goes against the policy of creating employment. This needs to be corrected. Strike as a weapon is a method of an uncivilized society. In a civilized society when so much legal remedy available this is uncalled for. Special Labour Commission at central level must continuously review the minimum as well as maximum levels of remuneration for all employees including even managing director. A maximum multiple of twenty five should be allowed between minimum and maximum. Even an unskilled worker should have a maximum ceiling which should be about four time the minimum wages announced by the government for various unemployment scheme.

Labour must ensure quality and quantity of work so as to meet production targets. Any slackness must not remain unfinished. We should try to achieve the standards of Germany and Japan.

All assets should be treated as "National" assets which have been created by various tax breaks and incentive as well as by using natural resources. Hence their protection should be the primary aim of the government. Excessive demand from labour should not make the company sick and uncompetitive. Government should also discourage cut throat competition in the name of consumer and give due protection to each industrial units. To ensure good health of these companies there should be at least forty percent independent directors who are appointed from the team selected and approved by stock exchanges, banks and financial institutions.

To avoid concentration of wealth in few, both capital assets as well as luxurious expenditure by the wealthy must be controlled. Excess wealth in assets must be nationalized and taken over by government.

Transport:

The western economy is largely based on motor cars. Millions of cars are produced every year which requires hundreds of industries for producing its various parts. But this results in cars getting priority and there is a complete urban chaos as well as pollution, noise, congestion and excessive time spent in journey by motor car due to traffic jams. What is required is more encouragement to buses and trains which will save fuel and pollution. All major roads in urban areas should have reserved bus lanes.

Urban Slums:

It is a great blot on India that human beings are living life like pigs and animals in extremely dirty surroundings. Yet the politicians are more interested in providing flyovers and space for those who travel by cars rather than decent housing for the poor. In future for all housing projects at least 25% of the built up area should be reserved for rental accommodation especially for the poor. And this should be of small sizes of 250-300 sq feet area with rental controlled by State Government. Free housing must not be provided as it only encourages more migration.

Environment:

The entire universe has been created from the five basic media comprising space, gas, fire, liquid and solids. Today all the 5 media are highly polluted. The result is new and new diseases are developing which have no cure. The rivers that we used to worship have now become drainage or sewage. The wind is so polluted that it is difficult to even breathe. And the solid that is the earth has extensive areas or heaps of waste especially of plastic which does not get degraded.

As explained above encouragement of public transport can reduce air pollution. Those industries which are highly polluting should not be allowed to operate. The domestic toilets use water for drainage which without purification drains into rivers. Hence the rivers have become drains of sewage. As a future policy all new construction must adopt in each house septic tanks to clean the water. This water should then go by separate pipe line to gardens, parks and for watering of trees. The water used for bathing and washing etc should be cleaned at each house through filtration and reused for toilet flushing. This system can reduce water consumption by half. In any case Hindus who worship water in the form of Varun deity should not allow such pollution for water.

6. EDUCATIONAL REFORMS:

History

Education is the most important thing in the life. In an immature child the thoughts and culture which are impressed remain with him throughout the life and it becomes very difficult later on to change these. Hence Christians and Muslims take advantage of this and from beginning itself they impose on their mind that the Bible and Koran are the voice of God. Other religions are mere superstition and need to be finished from the earth. Taking advantage of this, in order to maintain the British government in India and also to spread their culture, Macaulay revised the entire educational texts and published in these that the western civilization is the best and our own culture and civilization, even though better, has been put as unscientific and superstitious. Our own civilization is the most ancient one having a continuous hold of 20,000 yrs. It is the only civilization which still remains alive and this itself is sufficient proof of its being the greatest. Hence the primary thing is to first remove the mental slavery and to completely revise the curriculum established by Macaulay. The new texts should be based on facts and truth. Also all the atrocities and barbarous conduct of the invaders that is the Muslims and Christians during their rule must be brought out fully. Otherwise without studies and precautionary steps "History repeats itself" and we shall undergo the same slavery as we faced earlier. We should also learn about our past glory and the height to which our civilization had arisen. This shall act as a guide and encouragement for achieving still higher levels.

Culture:

The primary aim of education is that the child is exposed to the culture and social norms of society and that he is made to advance such a civilization to a still greater height. Also there should be a continuous effort of unity amongst all section of society. But today it is entirely opposite. Macaulay's education has tried to completely wipe out the older civilization and it is a western civilization which breaks the society based on unlimited wealth and greed. The capitalist system encourages a person to a narrow mindedness to his own prosperity and looting others. For example the medical doctors spend heavily in getting their degree and subsequently adopt various wrong means to regenerate their money. As an example in Mumbai under the Employees State Insurance, earlier 25% of child deliveries by pregnant women were carried out through caesarean operations just to make more money. Subsequently the Insurance Company fixed a lump sum amount based on each delivery irrespective of the method. The caesarean operations reduced to less than 2%. There are many such examples.

Language:

The medium of instruction should be the mother tongue of the child which makes it easiest to grasp the subject. However common languages like Hindi and English should be taught to a limited extent for reading and speaking and not with grammar and higher literature. But to encourage people to take mother tongue it is also essential that subsequent working in life should also be based on mother tongue. Hence the language in the Courts and in business should also be carried out in local language. Only those who go to other States or abroad should be specially coached in those languages through special classes.

Job orientation:

In the initial primary stage the education should be to teach the child simple language arithmetic, hygiene etc and about culture, tradition and ability to live in society in co operation with others. Subsequently the efforts should be made towards job orientation by which he is enabled to earn according to his situation as well as aptitude. Thus in villages if a child is from an agricultural family then immediately he should be put in agricultural operations at least few hours a day. Also all children should be encouraged to do manual work from sixth standard and not merely doing work by sitting in office like Babus. From the 8th standard to next two yrs worker's children should be trained under Industrial raining institutes in any of the vocation like mechanic, fitter, welder etc. From 10th to 12th the teaching should be for the lowest level of non-manual vocations like accountant, store keeper, typing, chemist, draftsmen, nurse, compounder etc. In the period 12 to 15th classes, this should be the first professional course for higher level and this should produce working engineers, doctors, school teachers etc. The post graduation should be limited to those who want to specialize in a narrow field and also do research.

It is necessary to narrow the field of specialization. This will enable to reduce the course content and not unnecessarily burden the students with excessive information which is never used through-out the life. For example a lawyer's course can be separated into branches like land and realty, taxation, criminal etc. If somebody wants to widen his practice he can take extra course for about 6 months to prepare for this. All courses should be reduced in content by at least 25%. Together with this in all courses there should be practical orientation and the students should be asked to spend 25% of time in field as a trainee with those who practice the particular branch of activity.

Conclusion:

We have to be proud of the fact that we are inheritors of such a past, which was so glorious.

Hence it is in our hands that we make our future also equally bright. The intelligentsia of the world believes so. Arnold Toynbee says that it is becoming clear that a chapter whose beginning started from west will have an ending, which will be Indian. The humanity of the world can be saved only by Indian culture. Even Will Durant says "It is true that after crossing the Himalayas India has given such gifts to the world like grammar, law, philosophy, hypnotism, chess, decimals and mathematics. But all these are nothing compared to what we can expect from them in future." (from the book by Sudhakar Raje).

O children of the divine awaken and arise. Get up and break your shackles of mental slavery. Abandon the seeking of luxury and power, remember the inheritance of your culture and think loudly that you have to lead the world and to save it. Spread peace, happiness and prosperity throughout the world. Will the children of this ancient civilization accept this challenge?

• In ancient times, Hinduism was the main religion in all continents and sub continent (Europe) of the world including Japan to the East and North and South Americas in the west and Hindus travelled everywhere. This was followed by Zoroastrianism in Iran based on RigVed' and from Zoroastrianism came out Judaism in Palestine area. Judaism also laid the foundation of intolerance of the West. From this came out Christianity. Earlier Christianity was based on Buddhism but under Emperor Constantine and others, all semblances of similarity were removed from Bible. Then followed systematic destruction of all Hindu Temples from Europe and forcible conversion of Hindus to Christianity by terrible cruel means. The present seat of Catholic Christianity at Rome was built after destroying the temple there. Even the library of Alexandria containing all ancient history and knowledge was destroyed by Christians to wipe out the above knowledge and lay the foundation on imperialism of Europe.

The Arabians followed suit by their own brand of Islam and forced conversions and destruction of Hindu Temples. In both above so-called religions (Christianity and Islam), there is barely any spirituality. It is naked imperialism to spread European and Arabian power and culture. Please read more details inside the booklet.
